Dear Dan Elsborg,

I am writing you on the advice of David Man with whom I have been in contact.

I am interested in finding all relevant information concerning two top American diplomatic people, both of whom served in Vietnam - Porter as Ambassador & Coors as political advisor. Do you know whether they held aggressive stances? Did they direct pacification & interrogation? For what exactly were they responsible? Was their responsibility active or of a formal character?
Any information or sources of such information would be deeply appreciated. Sincerely, Victor Levant
